MR. EDITOR-The Journal of this morning publishes an article, over the signature of "Cyclops," copied from the Boston Pilot, showing Gen Scott's great liberality, in defending Irishmen from British tyranny. Now, I do not intend to take a particle from Gen. Scott's merit, but I would ask the Journal, had it been American born citizens he (Scott) interfered for, would he get any of this unnecessary praise? No sir, not a bit of it. All this unnecessary praise? No sir, not a bit of it. All and transportation.—Dayton Empire. would acknowledge he did his duty, as their officer, and and transportation.—Dayton Empire. no more; and why should Irishmen be appealed to because Scott did his duty towards them, any more than if they were American born-for American citizens they were in all other respects? Consequently he did his duty, and no more. Had he done otherwise than to defend those men who fought with him, when he had the power to do so, he would get the execration of all good men.
